the jungles of India. Prior to killing its last owner the stallion had a record of having killed or maimed no less than eight men, yet with his bad record there were always to be found fool-hardy persons to buy him, until his last offense, when the neighbors of the deceased took the matter into their own hands and killed the man-killer, a punishment that should have been meted out to the animal years ago. While the man who will willingly have such an animal around him, in an endeavor to perpetuate a strain of vicious blood, is hardly to be pitied when he meets with a terrible death by being kicked or crushed out of all semblance to humanity, public decency should make it a criminal offense to keep for any purposes whatever an animal so dangerous to life and limb. THE report of Major Powell, Director of the Geological Survey, in regard to the storage of water to reclaim the arid lands, opens up a wonderful future for the Great West. Major Powell says there are 1,000,000 square miles of arid lands that would be valuable if water could be obtained to irrigate them. He further shows that there are 1,300,000 square miles of land with an average rainfall of fifteen inches per year, which can be utilized to reclaim these arid lands. If all the rainfall in this area could be stored amount necessary to make erable all the arid lands. WASTE WATER POWER.

The Sage of Sageland Discusses
This All Important Question.
Dan De Quille in a recent issue of the Salt Lake Tribune has the following to say concerning the utilization of waste power:

In all parts of the world rapid strides are at present being made in the utilization of waste water power by means of its electrical transmission to places where it can be conveniently used. Improvements are being constantly made in dynamos and other apparatus, and already power is being transmitted electrically a distance of several miles in places in Europe. In this way the waste power of waterfalls situated in almost inaccessible gorges is being transmitted to towns where it can be remuneratively utilized. This seems almost like so much clear gain to the world. *
At the mouth of the Sutro tunnel much water power is now wasted that should be utilized in this city. Between the mouth of the tunne and the Carson river there is a fall of 155 feet. Water wheels might be set up there to drive dynamos and the power generated transmit-ted over wires led through the tunnel (a distance of 20,200 feet) to the Comstock lode. The electricity thus brought to the town might either be utilized for driving underground machinery or it might be brought to the surface and used in driving machinery or lightleg the town. It is true that we already have electric lamps in the city, but they are supplied with electricity generated by dynamos driven by water brought through pipes from the Sierras and which is at all times a merchantable commodity—is "spot cash"—while the Sutro tun-nel would be the product of water running to waste.

There is another place whence we might derive a vast amount of power from water now running to waste. This is a point on the Truckee below Reno, near Glendale.
There can be had forty-five feet of fall and all the water in the Truckee river. The distance to this city in a straight line is only sixteen miles. It was from this point that Lyman Parker and others some years ago proposed to bring compressed air. They intended to make the river drive several huge air compressors and the compressed article was then to be sent to the Cometock through a large iron pipe. The pipe was to be carried over depres-sions on tre-tiework supports, still there would have been so many curves in it that there would have been some leakage. Undoubtedly power could, be transmitted that gistance by electricity.

The Festive Baggage Smasher. Frequent complaints are heard against persons employed at railway stations not a thousand miles from Reno, for the exceeding rough manner in which trunks are used. As a general rule trunks are not lifted from the baggage cars, but thrown upon a truck with a fall of fully two feet, or on the platform with a fall ranging from two to four or more feet. All this recklessness in handling the baggage of travelers could easily be obviated by the use of a skid or heavy plank. Some rigid regulations should be inaugurated by the railway company in order to prevent so much damage to the trunks and property of railway

It is an old circumstance that all this howling about "the war tariff" comes from the party that made the war tariff necessary.

PLATFORM AND RESOLUTIONS The following platform and resolutions were adopted by the Republican State Convention, which convened at Winnemucca on the 15th instant: The Republicans of the State of Nevada, in Convention assembled, again express their loyalty to the principles of the Republican party, which have made this country so great and prosperous during the last quarter of a century.

quarter of a century.

Resolved, That the question of a sufficient upply of circulating medium to maintain a permanent range of the price of labor and property is the most important political question awaiting solution by the American people.

That a diminishing quantity of money reduces the price of labor and property, enriches the creditor, impoverishes the debtor, and paralyzes industry and enterprise.

reduces the price of labor and property, enriches the creditor, impoverishes the debtor, and paralyzes industry and enterprise.

That the present financial system of the United States, which increases or diminishes the circulating medium at the pleasure of the manipulators of the national banks, without regard to the increase of population or the wants of the people, and which recognizes gold alone as the standard of value, and places in the hands of the Treasury Department all the revenue of the Government to speculate with in bonds and loan to the national banks without interest, is subsersive of the rights of the people, oppressive, unjust and should be repudiated. That a financial policy whereby both gold and silver shall form the basis of 'irculation, whether the money used by the people be coin, or coin certificates redeemable in coin, or both, as convenience may require, is imperatively demanded.

That the attempt to substitute national bank notes, costing the Government millions of dollars annually, for free silver, costing nothing, is an outrage up n the recopie; that the money ring or trust, which has usurped the sovereign power of the Government to issue money, and which has fraudulently demonetized silver and selzed the revenues of the Government for private speculation, shocks the moral sense of the people and destroys respect for gove nment and law. We demand that the xing or trust be destroyed, and equal rights be restored to all the people.

We charge that President Cleveland is the willing tool or agent of a powerful money ring, which fattens on the subsidies of the Government, makes war on silver, issues its paper currency at the expense of the Government, borrows the revenues raised by t xation and uses the mwithout the paying ment of interest, contracts the cur ency to enhance the value of bonds, and enriches usurers, while it depresses the price of labor and property.

That we favor the nomination of no man for President who is personally interested in actional banks or the Bonde Indebtedne he Golden and Silver States to Exhibit Their Products in the East.

It has been known for a number weeks, says the San Francisco Chronicle of the 31 instant, that General T. H. Goodman, Department Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, has been attending various quiet meetings of his council of administration, but the important business that so early in the new commander's adminis istration required both his attention and that of his council was never clearly comprehended until

A circular letter from General Goodman, under the date of June 1st, appeared yesterday and will forthwith be scattered throughout California and Nevada. It is in effect that he has heard from Columbus, Obio, where the Twentysecond National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic is to be held this fall, and that the Grand Army management in the Buckeye State has already selected a headquarters for the Dapartment of Caiffornia in commodious and accessible rooms in the State Capitol building, and further, that the Ohio boys want the resources of the Golden State displayed during encampment week and that for such purpose the City Hall of Columbus, having a seating capacity for 4000 people, has been generously tendared without cost.

issue of the 2d instant that some party would place the responsibility of the young lady being thrown from her young lacy being thrown from her horse, onto one of our engineers, from needlessly and maliciously blowing his whistle, I would say in refutation of this charge that any who has the pleasure of an acquaintance with Engineer William Painter knows that he would never be guilty of such an act. It is the imperative duty of trains to sound the alarm—three blasts of the whistle—for all crossings, and it was only in performance of this duty that resulted so disastrously. The writer indulged in the assertion and expression, that every "mother's son of them" practiced the same fault, and I would say to him that it is false, that no engineer on this run was ever guilty of such conduct. It seems to be a pleasure for many to lose no opportunity to malign a railroad man, and I am of the impression that a more intimate acquaintance with us would disabuse their minds. Yesterday afternoon Edward Dalton, the grocer, doing business on Commercial Row, was seriously injured by an infuriated cow belonging to Mrs. Thempson, who resides on the corner of Ralston and Fourth streets. Mr. Dalton was endeavoring to separate the calf from its mother, when the latter, without warning, rushed at him with head down and threw him into the air. When he struck the earth, the now infurlated animal gored him time and time again, and had it not been for the timely aid of Mrs. Thompson's daughter, who beat the cow off with a pitchfork, there is no doubt but what Mr. Dalton would have paid for his rashness with his life. Mr. Dalton is confined to his room and is suf-fering considerably, although his physician, Dr. Thoma, is doing everything that medical science

Homicide at Candelaria A dispatch from Candelaria, dated the 4th instant, says: "Last evening Thomas Donohoe was shot and killed here by J. S. Callison. Nothing has been learned of the cause other than that the parties bad a dispute about mining ground. The shooting was done in the main street, which was crowded with people. Both men were armed and both fired several shots. No one seems to know what the shooting was about. Callison is one of the owners of the Callison mine, be-tween which and the Mount Diablo there was prolonged litigation several years ago."

The proprietor is now ready to receive proposals for lots in Powning's Addition. The map gives a good idea of the Tract, which is situated between the Central Pacific Railroad and the Truckee River, and commences on the west at a point three blocks distant from Virginia street, making it the most central and convenient of any portion of the rapidly growing town of Reno. Unlike any other part of the town, this addition faces the beautiful Truckee River, and Riverside avenue is certain to become the fashionable driveway of the country. The streets are 80 feet wide, while Riverside and Keystone avenues are intended to be 100 feet in width. All alleys are 20 feet wide. The soil is a rich gravelly loam, and susceptible of the highest state of cultivation. Being situated as it is, it is more exempt from fire than any other section. The regular lots are 50x140 feet. The sewerage is perfect.

WOMEN IN A SIZEPING CAR.

Most of Them Don't Make the Best of the Situation—The Woman Who Did. How many women are there who understand the successful combination of comparative comfort and a sleeping car? The commercial drummer will say none; the man with an ingenious wife may say one in a hundred; the truth probably lies in a middle statement-about one in a thou-

As a rule, the spectacle of a woman en deavoring to arrange herself for the night in a sleeper is either ludicrous or pitiable according to the nature of the observer. If she is unaccustomed to traveling by rail at night, and is a person of ordinary self-possession, she goes at it with an evident belief that she can make all neces-sary changes of toilet in the berth; so in she climbs laboriously. Then she skoots around a while, knocks her head against the upper berth several times, and gets her skirts wound tightly about her limbs in a most inextricable fashion. It is only when she finds herself cleaning her muddy overshoes on her new spring sacque that she concludes the thing impracticable.

Then she climbs out again, stands fac-ing the berth, buttons the curtains behind her, and resumes operations. The porter comes along, and, ignorant of her presence, jostles her rudely, while other pas sengers bang their valises unceremoni ously against her. To add to the displeasure of the situation, the curtains slip apart at the most inopportune moment

If she is not a very strong-minded per son she is apt to give up the fight in dis-gust, and tumble in frock and corsets and all, only to lie awake two thirds of the night, indulge in nightmare with smash-up trimmings the other third, and rise very early with a splitting headache, bad temper, and a fervent wish she had never left home.

This is the rule, and happy the man who encounters the exception, for he will treasure her ever in his memory as the

The exception was encountered one night last week. She was alone, and a passenger on the Chicago express which left the Grand Central depot at 6 o'clock P. M. Her quality was not made apparent until about fifty miles of Albany. Then it became evident that she regarded comfort as superior to the proprieties every time.

Her berth being prepared, with a look of quiet determination she stood up and drew the curtain behind her; not close enough however to embarrass her move-

Off came her waist; then she stepped out of her dress skirt, and folding both neatly, stowed them away. Next her corsets came off. Then she pinned a shawl around her shoulders, threw aside the curtain and came forth. Reaching her bag, she secured brush, comb and hand glass, and proceeded coolly to arrange her hair as was her wont in her own boudoir.

Thus far the men in the car had done their whole duty by looking the other way: but they gave it up when she deliberately took out all her hairpins, removed an elaborate switch, attached it to the hook at the side of the berth and combed it out carefully. This done she folded it up, put it away, got into bed, took off the shawl and in ten minutes was softly Then the men went into their own compartment, lighted fresh cigars, passed round a flask and wondered who might be the fortunate possessor of such woman.—New York Sun.

A Maine Fish Story.

An ardent sportsman of Bangor was entting through the ice on the pond pre-paratory to a day's sport, using a chisel with a handle like a shovel, which by ac-cident slipped from his grasp and disappeared in about six fathoms of water. He mourned his loss for it meant harder work to-morrow to get through the ice without it.

Nothing daunted he prepared his line and placed on the hook a plump live shiner and returned to camp to relate his misfortune. Trying his line shortly after. his first impression was that he he hooked a Chinaman, so hard did it pull, but when he had landed hiscatch imagine his surprise to find that he not only had a

The Girls' One Chance.

The right of young ladies to propose in leap year is thus explained. It owes its origin to an act of the Scotch Parliament in the year 1228. It was then ordained that during the reign of Margaordained that during the reign of Marga-ret of Scotland, "every malden lady of both high and low degree shall have lib-erty to speak to the man she likes. If he refuses to take her to be his wife, he shall be mulct in the sum of £100 or less, as his estate shall be, except and always if he can make it appear that he is betrothed to another woman, then he shall be free."

The existence of this privilege, without restriction to time or period, was found inconvenient, and so it was rendered only available once in four years, during leap year, when the month of February num-bers twenty-nine days to set the calendar

Black Eyes Made White. What produces a black eye is the break-ing of two capillaries, or smaller blood vessels, causing an infiltration of blood in

How To Remove A Tight Finger-Ring.

The other day an old lady came to me with the request to saw a ring from one of her fingers. It was her wedding ring, which she had neven had off since she was married, forty-five years before, and she was delighted to hear that I could remove it without cutting it.

I wound the finger round from the top downward with flat rubber braid, which seemed to push the flesh down to the bone. Her hand was then held above her head for a few moments. Then the bandage was quickly taken off and rewound on the finger.

TWENTY-SIX HEADS.

A Ghastly Story from the Police Records of Paris.

In Paris towards the end of the reign of Louis XIV, in a space of about four months, not less than twenty-six young men disappeared. They were all between seventeen and twenty-six years of age.

The intelligent multitude immediately got up a story that an illustrious princess, then of mature years, and suffering from a painful complaint, resorted, as a desperate remedy, to baths of human blood.

Riots were the consequence; a few of the ringleaders were hanged, but the disappearances continued, and the "lieutenant de police," the celebrated La Regnie, was finally threatened with a lettre de cachet and the Bastille if the mystery were not forthwith cleared.

Among his detectives he had a very

Among his detectives he had a very sharp fellow whose name has been immortalized by Emile Gaborian—one Lecoq.

This Lecoq was promised a high reward if he cleared the matter up, and under the double stimulus of sair and double stimulus of gain and professi amour propre, he set to work in right

Lecoq had a boy of about sixteen, whom he had brought up to the same business as himself—a tall, broad-shouldered, handsome youth, looking older than his years. He dressed him up in fashionable elothes, supplied him pleutifully with money, and directed him to mix freely with what is now called le monde, out on s'amuse, and the wholedetective staff was set to watch his movements.

One fine afternoon the decoy, lounging along the terrace of the Tulleries, was engaged in conversation by a young person of surpassing beauty, accompanied by an elderly woman of decent appearance. The youth was told the young lady was a Polish princess, &c., and, to make a long story short, a meeting was arranged for story short, a meeting was arranged for the following evening.

The old woman was to meet the youth at a church near the Louvre, and conduct at a church near the Louvre, and conduct him to the trysting place. Lecoq, duly apprised of this, was in at-tendance with a large body of well-armed policemen, and followed his son and guide to a house of splendid appearance in the Quartier St. Antoine.

It had been previously arranged with the youth that he should take an early opportunity of slipping handcuffs on the "Polish princess," and then give admis-sion to his father and his band. However, the youth, with characteristic foolhardiness, did not carry out the plan. Either he had one of his own, or else he was not insensible to the influence of beauty and wine, and thought possibly that it would be much nicer to be a Polish prince than a tipstaff at the Chatelet.

In short, he supped very merrily, and forgot all about Lecoq sculor and his fol lowers waiting outside. Presently, however, the princess rose from the table and withdrew a few moments.

The youth's suspicions revived; he tried The youth's suspicions review; he tried the door, but found it locked; then tried another; it was locked, too; he forced it open, and then staggered back, perfectly palsied with terror. The door was that of a cupboard, and there, neatly arranged on silver platters, were twenty-six human heads, embalmed by some mysterious process that enabled them to retain their life-like appearance.

It is probable that young Lecoq's would have speedily formed an addition to this grim collection had not his father at that very moment broken into the house.

The Polish princess was found to be in league with a chosen band of cutthroats. They sold the bodies of the kidnapped youths to medical students, and the heads were dispatched to Germany, where Figure assures us they were wanted for the study of phrenology.

The "Polish princess" and her band were all hung, after being duly tortured according to the law.

MT. HOOD'S CHANGING SPLENDORS.

The Character and Variety of Expres-sion in That Heaven-Climbing Peak. Mount Hood, besides having various elements of grandeur as of altitude, contour, etc., boasts of one remarkable attribute which few great "snow cones" possess. It rarely presents just the same appearance every time one takes a look at

One writer in describing some of the great snow mountains of Switzerland, makes use of "changing splendors." That expression applies with equal felicity to Mount Hood. There is more character and variety of expression to the mountain than that of any snow peak on the whole Pacific coast.

Atmospheric conditions, state of the weather, and the appearance of the sky all contribute to these varying aspects of the snow-crested monarch. Even the the snow-crested monarch. Even the seasons, and the change of the landscape around the base of the mountain, have much to do in producing the flitting moods and humors as shadowed forth by the different appearances. Those who looked at Mount Hood Wednesday afternoon saw it assume a new phase. Ex-tending from the base to nearly the summit was a dense cloud. The cloud com-pletely enveloped the lower part of the peak, and, though soft and hazy-like, was pe feetly opaque.

Down near the base it presented a dark blue color; a little higher the hue shaded the point off into a bronze purple; from midway up to where the cloud ended abruptly the filmy veil was of a pale rosy

But the glory of the whole scene was But the giory of the peak. Probably about one-tenth of the mountain was unob-served, and this was the very tip. On that portion the sun shone with undimmed splendor, lighting it up with a brilliancy which was painful to the eye.

It glowed like burnished copper for a moment, and then changed to a ghostly whiteness, so that one really funcied he could discern the snowy crystals.

Looking at the grand old mountain, the lines of Bayard Taylor flitted through the mind unconsciously:

We rise and journey onward,
Through valleys green and old,
When the far white Alps announce the morn,
And keep the sunset's gold.

Only for a short time, however, could this rare vision of beauty be seen. Twenty minutes later dark masses rolled upward, obscuring the sun and leaving every trace of Mount Hood buried behind a sombre pile of commonplace clouds.—The Oregonian

"What shall I do?" said the young and attractive blonde. "George is very attentive. He's awfully nice."

"Well, accept him."

"No, I don't want to yet. You see he's poor and—I am having lots of fun—and—but he will be rich in about five years."

"Well, tell him you'll wait."

"How can I do that? He would find out that I wanted his money—but I really want him, you know, How can I keep him hanging on?"

"Tell him you will not marry—that you are going to be an old maid, and keep it up as long as he will stand it."—San Francisco Chroniels.
